

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

English Bards, AND SCOTCH REVIEWERS.

In 1818 when he had quitted England never return he perused this poem - and Mr Murray in possession of the copy to which he added some
 MS. notes. - e. g.

"The binding of this Vol. is considerably too poor valuable for its contents.

"Nothing but the consideration of its being the property of another prevents me from consigning this miserable record of misplaced anger and indiscriminate acrimony to the flames. B."

Preface

TO THE

THIRD EDITION.

ALL my friends, learned and unlearned, have urged me not to publish this Satire with my name. If I were to be "turn'd from the career of my humour by quibbles quick, and paper bullets of the brain," I should have complied with their counsel. But I am not to be terrified by abuse, or bullied by reviewers, with or without arms. I can safely say that I have attacked none personally who did not commence on the offensive. An Author's works are public property: he who purchases may judge, and publish his opinion if he pleases; and the Authors I have endeavoured to commemorate may do by me as I have done by them: I dare say they will succeed better in condemning my scribblings, than in mending their own. But my object is not to prove that I can write well, but, if possible, to make others write better.

As the Poem has met with far more success than I expected, I have endeavoured in this Edition to make some additions and alterations to render it more worthy of public perusal.

In the First Edition of this Satire, published anonymously, fourteen lines on the subject of Bowles's Pope were written and inserted at the request of an ingenious friend of mine, who has now in the press a volume of Poetry. In the present Edition they are erased, and some of my own substituted in their stead; my only reason for this being that, which I conceive would operate with any other person in the same manner; a determination not to publish with my name any production which was not entirely and exclusively my own composition.

With regard to the real talents of many of the poetical persons whose performances are mentioned, or alluded to, in the following pages, it is presumed by the Author that there can be little difference of opinion in the Public at large; though, like other sectaries, each has his separate tabernacle of proselytes, by whom his abilities are overrated, his faults overlooked, and his metrical canons received without scruple and without consideration. But the unquestionable possession of considerable genius by several of the writers here censured, renders their mental prostitution more to be regretted. Imbecility may be pitied, or, at worst, laughed at and forgotten; perverted powers demand the most decided reprehension. No one can wish more than the Author, that some known and able writer had undertaken their exposure, but Mr. GIFFORD has devoted him- self to MASSINGER, and in the absence of the regular physician, a country practitioner may, in cases of absolute necessity, be allowed to prescribe his nostrum to prevent the extension of so deplorable an epidemic, provided there be no quackery in his treatment of the malady. A caustic is here offered, as it is to be feared nothing short of actual cautery can recover the numerous patients afflicted with the present prevalent and distressing rabies for rhyming.—As to the Edinburgh Reviewers; it would, indeed, require a Hercules to crush the Hydra; but if the Author succeeds in merely “bruising one of the heads of the serpent,” though his own hand should suffer in the encounter, he will be amply satisfied.

ENGLISH BARDS,

AND

SCOTCH REVIEWERS.

STILL must I hear?—shall hoarse FITZGERALD
bawl.

His creaking couplets in a tavern hall,
And I not sing, lest, haply, Scotch Reviews
Should dub me scribbler, and denounce my Muse?

* IMITATION.

“Semper ego auditor tantum? nunquamne reponam

“Vexatus toties rauci Theseide Codri?”

JUVENAL, SATIRE 1.

Mr. FITZGERALD, facetiously termed by COBBETT the “Small Beer Poet,” inflicts his annual tribute of verse on the “Literary Fund;” not content with writing, he spouts in person after the company have imbibed a reasonable quantity of bad port, to enable them to sustain the operation.

Prepare for rhyme—I'll publish, right or wrong:
Fools are my theme, let satire be my song.

Oh! Nature's noblest gift—my grey goosequill!

Slave of my thoughts, obedient to my will,
Torn from thy parent bird to form a pen,
That mighty instrument of little men! 10
The pen! foredoomed to aid the mental throes
Of brains that labour, big with Verse or Prose,
Though Nymphs forsake, and Critics may deride
The lover's solace, and the Author's pride.
What Wits! what Poets dost thou daily raise!
How frequent is thy use, how small thy praise!
Condemned at length to be forgotten quite,
With all the pages which 'twas thine to write.
But thou, at least, mine own especial pen!
Once laid aside but now assumed again, 20

Our task complete, like Hamet's* shall be free;
Tho' spurned by others, yet beloved by me :
Then let us soar to-day, no common theme,
No Eastern vision, no distempered dream
Inspires—our path, though full of thorns, is plain ;
Smooth be the verse, and easy be the strain.

When Vice triumphant holds her sov'reign sway,
And men through life her willing slaves obey ;
When folly, frequent harbinger of crime,
Unfolds her motley store to suit the time ;      30
When Knaves and Fools combined o'er all prevail,
When Justice halts, and Right begins to fail,
E'en then the boldest start from public sneers,
Afraid of Shame, unknown to other fears,

* CID HAMET BENENGELI promises repose to his pen in the last chapter of DON QUIXOTE. Oh ! that our voluminous gentry would follow the example of CID HAMET BENENGELI.

More darkly sin, by Satire kept in awe,
And shrink from Ridicule though not from Law.

Such is the force of Wit! but not belong
To me the arrows of satiric song;
The royal vices of our age demand
A keener weapon, and a mightier hand. 40
Still there are follies, e'en for me to chase,
And yield at least amusement in the race:
Laugh when I laugh, I seek no other fame,
The cry is up, and scribblers are my game:
Speed Pegasus!—ye strains of great and small,
Ode! Epic! Elegy!—have at you all!
I, too, can crawl, and once upon a time
I poured along the town a flood of rhyme,
A school-boy freak, unworthy praise or blame;
I printed—older children do the same. 50
'Tis pleasant sure to see one's name in print;
A Book's a Book, altho' there's nothing in't.

Not that a Title's sounding charm can save
Or scrawl or scribbler from an equal grave:
This LAMB must own, since his Patrician name
Failed to preserve the spurious Farce from shame*.
No matter, GEORGE continues still to write†,
Tho' now the name is veiled from public sight.
Moved by the great example I pursue
The self-same road, but make my own review: 60
Not seek great JEFFREY'S, yet like him will be Self-constituted Judge of Poesy.

A man must serve his time to ev'ry trade
Save Censure, Critics all are ready-made.
Take hackneyed jokes from MILLER, got by rote,
With just enough of learning to misquote;

* This ingenious youth is mentioned more particularly,
with his production, in another place.

† In the EDINBURGH REVIEW.

---

A mind well skilled to find or forge a fault,
 A turn for punning, call it Attic salt ;
 To JEFFREY go, be silent and discreet,
 His pay is just ten sterling pounds per sheet: 70
 Fear not to lie, 'twill seem a lucky hit,
 Shrink not from blasphemy, 'twill pass for wit;
 Care not for feeling—pass your proper jest,
 And stand a Critic hated yet caressed.

And shall we own such judgment? no—as soon
 Seek roses in December—ice in June;
 Hope constancy in wind, or corn in chaff,
 Believe a woman, or an epitaph,
 Or any other thing that's false before
 You trust in Critics who themselves are sore ; 80
 Or yield one single thought to be misled
 + By JEFFREY's heart or LAMB's Bœotian head*.

* MESSRS. JEFFREY and LAMB are the Alpha and Omega, the first and last of the Edinburgh Review ; the others are mentioned hereafter.

Lord B. in some MS. notes on this poem says of this line — " This was not just. Neither the heart nor the head of these gentlemen are at all what they are here represented."

---

To these young tyrants*, by themselves misplaced
 Combined usurpers on the Throne of Taste :
 To these when Authors bend in humble awe
 And hail their voice as Truth, their word as Law ;
 While these are Censors, 'twould be sin to spare ;
 While such are Critics, why should I forbear ?
 But yet so near all modern worthies run,
 'Tis doubtful whom to seek, or whom to shun ; 90
 Nor know we when to spare, or where to strike
 Our Bards and Censors are so much alike.

† Then should you ask me, why I venture o'er
 The path that POPE and GIFFORD trod before?

* “ Stulta est Clementia, cum tot ubique “ ——— occurras perituræ parcere chartæ.

JUVENAL, SAT. 1.

† IMITATION.

“ *Cur tamen hoc libeat potius decurrere campo
 “ Per quem magnus equos Auruncæ flexit alumnus :
 “ Si vacat, et placidi rationem admittitis, edam.”*

JUVENAL, S. 1.

If not yet sickened, you can still proceed;
Go on; my rhyme will tell you as you read.

+ Time was, ere yet in these degenerate days
Ignoble themes obtained mistaken praise,
When Sense and Wit with Poesy allied,
No fabled Graces, flourished side by side, 100
From the same fount their inspiration drew,
And, reared by Taste, bloomed fairer as they grew.
Then, in this happy Isle, a POPE's pure strain
Sought the rapt soul to charm, nor sought in vain;
A polished nation's praise aspired to claim,
And raised the people's, as the poet's fame.
Like him great DRYDEN poured the tide of song,
In stream less smooth, indeed, yet doubly strong.
Then CONGREVE's scenes could cheer, or OTWAY's
melt;
For nature then an English audience felt— 110

In The first edition - the poem began here - the foregoing lines were added on the 2<sup>d</sup> edition appearing.

---

But why these names, or greater still, retrace,
When all to feebler Bards resign their place?
Yet to such times our lingering looks are cast,
When taste and reason with those times are past.
Now look around, and turn each trifling page,
Survey the precious works that please the age;
This truth at least let Satire's self allow,
No dearth of Bards can be complained of now:
The loaded Press beneath her labour groans,
And Printer's devils shake their weary bones, 120
While SOUTHEY'S Epics cram the creaking shelves,
And LITTLE'S Lyrics shine in hot-pressed twelves.

Thus saith the Preacher* ; "nought beneath the sun
Is new," yet still from change to change we run,
What varied wonders tempt us as they pass!
The Cow-pox, Tractors, Galvanism, and Gas

In turns appear to make the vulgar stare
 Till the swoln bubble bursts—and all is air!
 Nor less new schools of poetry arise,
 Where dull pretenders grapple for the prize: 130
 O'er Taste awhile these Pseudo-bards prevail;
 Each country Book-club bows the knee to Baal,
 And, hurling lawful Genius from the throne,
 Erects a shrine and idol of its own;
 Some leaden calf—but whom it matters not,
 From soaring SOUTHEY down to grovelling STOTT*.

* STOTT, better known in the "Morning Post" by the name of HAFIZ. This person is at present the most profound explorer of the Bathos. I remember, when the reigning family left Portugal, a special ode of Master STOTT's beginning thus:

(Stott loquitur quoad Hibernia.)

"Princely offspring of Braganza,

"Erin greets thee with a Stanza," &c. &c.

Also a sonnet to Rats, well worthy of the subject, and a most thundering ode, commencing as follows:

"Oh! for a Lay! loud as the surge

"That lashes Lapland's sounding shore."

Lord have mercy on us! the "Lay of the Last Minstrel" was nothing to this.

---

Behold in various throngs the scribbling crew;
For notice eager, pass in long review:
Each spurs his jaded Pegasus apace,
And Rhyme and Blank maintain an equal race; 140
Sonnets on sonnets croud, and ode on ode;
And Tales of Terror jostle on the road;
Immeasurable measures move along,
For simpering Folly loves a varied song,
To strange mysterious Dullness still the friend,
Admires the strain she cannot comprehend.
Thus Lays of Minstrels*—may they be the last!—
On half-strung harps whine mournful to the blast,

* See the "Lay of the Last Minstrel," passim. Never was any plan so incongruous and absurd as the ground-work of this production. The entrance of Thunder and Lightning, prologuising to Bayes' Tragedy, unfortunately takes away the merit of originality from the dialogue between Messieurs the Spirits of Flood and Fell in the first canto. Then we have the amiable William of Deloraine, "a stark moss-trooper," videlicet, a happy compound of poacher, sheep-stealer, and highwayman. The propriety of his magical lady's injunction not to read can only be equalled by his

While mountain spirits prate to river sprites,
That dames may listen to the sound at nights; 150
And goblin brats of Gilpin Horner's brood
Decoy young Border-nobles through the wood, candid acknowledgement of his independence of the trammels of spelling, although, to use his own elegant phrase, "'twas his neck-verse at hairibee," i. e. the gallows.

The biography of Gilpin Horner, and the marvellous pedestrian page, who travelled twice as fast as his master's horse, without the aid of seven-leagued boots, are chef d'œuvres in the improvement of taste. For incident we have the invisible, but by no means sparing, box on the ear, bestowed on the page, and the entrance of a Knight and Charger into the castle, under the very natural disguise of a wain of hay. Marmion, the hero of the latter romance, is exactly what William of Deloraine would have been, had he been able to read and write. The Poem was manufactured for Messrs. CONSTABLE, MURRAY, and MILLER, worshipful Booksellers, in consideration of the receipt of a sum of money, and truly, considering the inspiration, it is a very creditable production. If Mr. SCOTT will write for hire, let him do his best for his paymasters, but not disgrace his genius, which is undoubtedly great, by a repetition of black letter Ballad imitations.

And skip at every step; Lord knows how high,
And frighten foolish babes the Lord knows why,
While high-born ladies in their magic cell,
Forbidding Knights to read who cannot spell,
Dispatch a courier to a wizard's grave,
And fight with honest men to shield a knave.

Next view in state, proud prancing on his roan,
The golden-crested haughty Marmion, 160
Now forging scrolls, now foremost in the fight,
Not quite a felon, yet but half a Knight,
The gibbet or the field prepared to grace;
A mighty mixture of the great and base.
And think'st thou, SCOTT! by vain conceit perchance,

On public taste to foist thy stale romance,
Though MURRAY with his MILLER may combine
To yield thy muse just half-a-crown per line?
No! when the sons of song descend to trade,
Their bays are sear, their former laurels fade. 170

Let such forego the poet's sacred name,
Who rack their brains for lucre, not for fame :
Low may they sink to merited contempt,
And scorn remunerate the mean attempt !
Such be their meed, such still the just reward
Of prostituted Muse and hireling bard !
For this we spurn Apollo's venal son,
And bid a long, "good night to Marmion*."

These are the themes that claim our plaudits now ;
These are the Bards to whom the Muse must bow :
While MILTON, DRYDEN, POPE, alike forgot,
Resign their hallowed Bays to WALTER SCOTT.

The time has been, when yet the Muse was young,
When HOMER swept the lyre, and MARO sung,

*. " Good night to Marmion"—the pathetic and also prophetic exclamation of HENRY BLOUNT, Esquire, on the death of honest Marmion.

---

An Epic scarce ten centuries could claim,
While awe-struck nations hailed the magic name :
The work of each immortal Bard appears
The single wonder of a thousand years*.
Empires have mouldered from the face of earth,
Tongues have expired with those who gave them
birth,

190

Without the glory such a strain can give,
As even in ruin bids the language live.
Not so with us, though minor Bards content,
On one great work a life of labour spent;
With eagle pinion soaring to the skies,
Behold the Ballad-monger SOUTHEY rise!

* As the Odyssey is so closely connected with the story of the Iliad, they may almost be classed as one grand historical poem. In alluding to MILTON and TASSO, we consider the "Paradise Lost," and "Gierusalemme Liberata," as their standard efforts, since neither the "Jerusalem conquered" of the Italian, nor the "Paradise regained" of the English Bard, obtained a proportionate celebrity to their former poems. Query: Which of Mr. SOUTHEY's will survive?

To him let CAMOENS, MILTON, TASSO, yield,
Whose annual strains, like armies, take the field.
First in the ranks see Joan of Arc advance,
The scourge of England, and the boast of France !
Though burnt by wicked BEDFORD for a witch,
Behold her statue placed in Glory's niche;
Her fetters burst, and just released from prison,
A virgin Phoenix from her ashes risen.
Next see tremendous Thalaba come on*,
Arabia's monstrous, wild, and wond'rous son ;
Domdaniel's dread destroyer, who o'erthrew
More mad magicians than the world e'er knew.
Immortal Hero ! all thy foes o'ercome,
For ever reign—the rival of Tom Thumb ! 210

* Thalaba, Mr. SOUTHEY's second poem, is written in open defiance of precedent and poetry. Mr. S. wished to produce something novel, and succeeded to a miracle. Joan of Arc was marvellous enough, but Thalaba was one of those poems "which," in the words of PORSON, "will be read when HOMER and VIRGIL are forgotten, but —not till then."

---

Since startled metre fled before thy face,
Well wert thou doomed the last of all thy race !
Well might triumphant Genii bear thee hence !
Illustrious conqueror of common sense !
Now, last and greatest, Madoc spreads his sails,
Cacique in Mexico, and Prince in Wales ;
Tells us strange tales, as other travellers do,
More old than Mandeville's, and not so true.
Oh ! SOUTHEY, SOUTHEY* ! cease thy varied song !
A Bard may chaunt too often and too long : 220
As thou art strong in verse, in mercy spare !
A fourth, alas ! were more than we could bear :

* We beg Mr. SOUTHEY's pardon : "Madoc disdains the degraded title of Epic." See his preface. Why is Epic degraded ? and by whom ? Certainly the late Romaunts of Masters COTTLE, Laureat PYE, OGILVY, HOLE, and gentle Mistress COWLEY, have not exalted the Epic Muse ; but as Mr. SOUTHEY's poem "disdains the appellation," allow us to ask—has he substituted any thing better in its stead ? or must he be content to rival Sir RICHARD BLACKMORE, in the quantity as well as quality of his verse ?

But if, in spite of all the world can say,
 Thou still wilt verseward plod thy weary way ;
 If still in Berkley Ballads most uncivil,
 Thou wilt devote old women to the devil*,
 The babe unborn thy dread intent may rue :
 " God help thee," SAUTHELY, and thy readers too†.

"Unjust"

Lord B. M.S.

Next comes the dull disciple of thy school,
 That guild apostate from poetic rule, 280
 The simple WANDSWORTH, framer of a lay
 As soft as evening in his favourite May,

* See, The Old Woman of Berkley, a Ballad, by Mr. SAUTHELY, wherein an aged gentlewoman is carried away by Beelzebub, on a "high trotting horse."

† The last line, "God help thee," is an evident plagiarism from the Anti-jacobin to Mr. SAUTHELY, on his Dactyls

"God help thee, silly one."—Poetry of the Anti-jacobin, page 23.

With sparkling eyes, and cheek by passion flushed,

'Tis LITTLE! young Catullus of his day,
As sweet, but as immoral in his lay!
Grieved to condemn, the Muse must still be just,

Pure is the flame which o'er her altar burns;
From grösser license with disgust she turns:
Yet, kind to youth, this expiation o'er,

It is also to be remarked, that the things given to the public as Poems of CAMOENS, are no more to be found in the original Portuguese, than in the Song of Solomon.

His style in youth or age is still the same;
For ever feeble and for ever tame.
Triumphant first see "Temper's Triumphs" shine!
At least I'm sure they triumphed over mine. 310
Of "Music's Triumphs" all who read may swear
That luckless Music never triumphed there*.

Moravians rise! bestow some meet reward
On dull devotion—lo! the Sabbath Bard,
Sepulchral GRAHAME, pours his notes sublime,
In mangled prose, nor e'en aspires to rhyme,
Breaks into blank the Gospel of St. Luke,
And boldly pilfers from the Pentateuch;

* HAYLEY'S two most notorious verse productions, are "Triumphs of Temper," and "Triumphs of Music." He has also written much Comedy in rhyme, Epistles, &c. &c. As he is rather an elegant writer of notes and biography, let us recommend POPE'S Advice to WYCHERLEY, to Mr. H.'s consideration: viz. "to convert his poetry into prose," which may easily be done by taking away the final syllable of each couplet.

And, undisturbed by conscientious qualms,
 Perverts the Prophets, and purloins the Psalms*. 320

Too savage all on Bowles' and B. ms. Hail sympathy! thy soft idea brings
 A thousand visions of a thousand things,
 And shows, dissolved in thine own melting tears,
 The maudlin Prince of mournful sonneteers.
 And art thou not their Prince, harmonious BOWLES!
 Thou first, great oracle of tender souls?
 Whether in sighing winds thou seek'st relief,
 Or consolation in a yellow leaf;
 Whether thy muse most lamentably tells
 What merry sounds proceed from Oxford bells†, 330
 Or, still in bells delighting, finds a friend,
 In every chime that jingled from Ostend?

* Mr. GRAHAME has poured forth two volumes of Cant, under the name of "Sabbath Walks," and "Biblical Pictures."

† See BOWLES's Sonnets, &c.—"Sonnet to Oxford," and "Stanzas on hearing the Bells of Ostend."

Ah ! how much juster were thy Muse's hap,
 If to thy bells thou would'st but add a cap !
 Delightful BOWLES ! still blessing and still blest,
 All love thy strain, but children like it best.
 'Tis thine with gentle LITTLE's moral song,
 To soothe the mania of the amorous throng !
 With thee our nursery damsels shed their tears,
 Ere Miss, as yet, completes her infant years :
 But in her teens thy whining powers are vain ; 340
 She quits poor BOWLES, for LITTLE's purer strain.
 Now to soft themes thou scornest to confine
 The lofty numbers of a harp like thine ;
 " Awake a louder and a loftier strain*,"
 Such as none heard before, or will again ;

* " Awake a louder," &c. &c. is the first line in BOWLES's
 " Spirit of Discovery ;" a very spirited and pretty dwarf Epic. Among other exquisite lines we have the following :—

" A kiss

" Stole on the list'ning silence, never yet

" Here heard ; they trembled even as if the power," &c. &c.

Where all discoveries jumbled from the flood,
Since first the leaky ark reposed in mud,
By more or less, are sung in every book,
From Captain NOAH down to Captain COOK. 350
Nor this alone, but pausing on the road,
The Bard sighs forth a gentle episode* ;
And gravely tells—attend each beauteous Miss!—
When first Madeira trembled to a kiss.
BOWLES ! in thy memory, let this precept dwell,
Stick to thy Sonnets, man ! at least they sell.
But if some new-born whim, or larger bribe
Prompt thy crude brain, and claim thee for a scribe,

That is, the woods of Madeira trembled to a kiss, very much astonished, as well they might be, at such a phenomenon.

* The Episode above alluded to, is the story of " Robert a Machin," and " Anna d'Arfet," a pair of constant lovers, who performed the kiss above-mentioned, that startled the woods of MADEIRA.

If chance some bard, though once by dunce's fear'd,
Now, prone in dust, can only be revered ;    360
If POPE, whose fame and genius from the first
Have foiled the best of critics, needs the worst,
Do thou essay ; each fault, each failing scan ;
The first of poets was, alas ! but man !
Rake from each ancient dunghill ev'ry pearl,
Consult Lord Fanny, and confide in CURLL* ;
Let all the scandals of a former age,
Perch on thy pen and flutter o'er thy page ;
Affect a candour which thou can'st not feel,
Clothe envy in the garb of honest zeal :    370
Write, as if St. John's soul could still inspire,
And do from hate, what † MALLET did for hire.

* CURLL is one of the Heroes of the Dunciad, and was a bookseller. Lord Fanny is the poetical name of Lord HERVEY, author of "Lines to the Imitator of Horace."

† Lord BOLINGBROKE hired MALLET to traduce POPE after his decease, because the Poet had retained some copies

Oh ! hadst thou lived in that congenial time,
 To rave with DENNIS, and with RALPH to rhyme*,
 Thronged with the rest around his living head,
 Not raised thy hoof against the lion dead,

 And linked thee to the Dunciad for thy pains†.

† See BOWLES's late edition of POPE's works, for which he received 300 pounds : thus Mr. B. has experienced, how much easier it is to profit by the reputation of another, than to elevate his own.

* “All this is right. I saw some letters of this fellow to an unfortunate poetess whose productions (which the poor woman by no means thought vainly of) he attacked so roughly and bitterly that I could hardly regret assailing him - even were it unjust which it ~~is~~ - not - for verily he is an ass.” Lord B. m.s.

Bæotian COTTLE, rich Bristow's boast,
Imports old stories from the Cambrian coast,
And sends his goods to market—all alive !
Lines forty thousand, Cantos twenty-five !
Fresh fish from Helicon ! who'll buy ? who'll buy ?
The precious bargain's cheap—in faith, not I.      x
Too much in turtle Bristol's sons delight,
Too much o'er bowls of rack prolong the night ;
If Commerce fills the purse, she clogs the brain,
And AMOS COTTLE strikes the Lyre in vain. 300
In him an author's luckless lot behold !
Condemned to make the books which once he sold.
Oh ! AMOS COTTLE !—Phœbus ! what a name
To fill the speaking trump of future fame !—
Oh ! AMOS COTTLE ! for a moment think
What meagre profits spring from pen and ink !
When thus devoted to poetic dreams,
Who will peruse thy prostituted reams ?

Oh! pen perverted! paper misapplied!
 Had *COTTLE still adorned the counter's side, 400
 Bent o'er the desk, or, born to useful toils,
 Been taught to make the paper which he soils,
 Plough'd, delv'd, or plied the oar with lusty limb,
 He had not sung of Wales, nor I of him.<sup>x</sup>

As Sisypheus against the infernal steep
 Rolls the huge rock, whose motions ne'er may sleep,
 So up thy hill, ambrosial Richmond! heaves
 Dull MAURICE† all his granite weight of leaves:

* MR. COTTLE, AMOS, JOSEPH, I don't know which, but one or both, once sellers of books they did not write, and now writers of books that do not sell, have published a pair of Epics. "Alfred," (poor Alfred! PYE has been at him too!) "Alfred" and the "Fall of Cambria."

† Mr. MAURICE hath manufactured the component parts of a ponderous quarto, upon the beauties of "Richmond Hill," and the like:—it also takes in a charming view of Turnham Green, Hammersmith, Brentford, Old and New, and the parts adjacent.

† Byron following the "Anti-Jacobin" makes Amos Cottle the author of "Alfred"; & other Epics.—"Alfred,"—"Malvern Hills," & some other poems were written by his brother Joseph Cottle found in a bookshop in Bristol & the like of some of the early works of Coleridge, in the "Athenaeum" Aug. 6. 1853.

Smooth, solid monuments of mental pain !
The petrifications of a plodding brain, 410
That ere they reach the top fall lumbering back again.

With broken lyre and cheek serenely pale,
Lo ! sad ALCÆUS wanders down the vale !
Though fair they rose, and might have bloomed at last,
His hopes have perished by the Northern blast :
Nipped in the bud by Caledonian gales,
His blossoms wither as the blast prevails !
O'er his lost works let classic SHEFFIELD weep :
May no rude hand disturb their early sleep* !

* Poor MONTGOMERY ! though praised by every English Review, has been bitterly reviled by the EDINBURGH. After all, the Bard of Sheffield is a man of considerable genius : his "Wanderer of Switzerland" is worth a thousand "Lyrical Ballads," and at least fifty "Degraded Epics."

Yet, say ! why should the Bard, at once, resign
 His claim to favour from the sacred Nine ?
 For ever startled by the mingled howl
 Of Northern wolves that still in darkness prow ;
 A coward brood which mangle as they prey,
"brutal" By hellish instinct, all that cross their way :
Lord B. Aged or young, the living or the dead,
"felons" No mercy find,—these harpies must be fed.
Lord B. Why do the injured unresisting yield
 The calm possession of their native field ?
 Why tamely thus before their fangs retreat, 430
"hellhounds" Nor hunt the bloodhounds back to ARTHUR'S
Lord B. seat ?*

* Health to immortal JEFFREY ! once, in name,
 England could boast a judge almost the same :
 In soul so like, so merciful, yet just,
 Some think that Satan has resigned his trust,

* ARTHUR'S seat ; the hill which overhangs Edinburgh.

* "Too ferocious - this is mere insanity"

Lord B. ms.

And given the Spirit to the world again,
To sentence Letters, as he sentenced men.
With hand less mighty, but with heart as black,
With voice as willing to decree the rack ;
Bred in the Courts betimes, though all that law 440
As yet hath taught him is to find a flaw.
Since well instructed in the patriot school
To rail at party, though a party tool,
Who knows ? if chance his patrons should restore
Back to the sway they forfeited before,
His scribbling toils some recompence may meet
And raise this DANIEL to the Judgment seat.
Let JEFFRIES' shade indulge the pious hope,
And greeting thus, present him with a rope ;
" Heir to my virtues ! man of equal mind ! 450
" Skilled to condemn as to traduce mankind,
" This cord receive ! for thee reserved with care,
" To wield in judgment, and at length to wear."

Health to great JEFFREY ! Heaven preserve his life,

To flourish on the fertile shores of Fife,
And guard it sacred in his future wars,
Since authors sometimes seek the field of Mars !
* Can none remember that eventful day,
That ever glorious, almost fatal fray,
When LITTLE's leadless pistol met his eye, 460
And Bow-street Myrmidons stood laughing by* ?
Oh ! day disastrous ! on her firm set rock,
Dunedin's castle felt a secret shock ;
Dark rolled the sympathetic waves of Forth,
Low groaned the startled whirlwinds of the North ;

* In 1806, Messrs. JEFFREY and MOORE met at Chalk-Farm. The duel was prevented by the interference of the Magistracy ; and, on examination, the balls of the pistols, like the courage of the combatants, were found to have evaporated. This incident gave occasion to much wagery in the Daily Prints.

* " all this is bad because personal".
Lord B. M.S.

TWEED ruffled half his waves to form a tear,
The other half pursued its calm career * ;
ARTHUR's steep summit nodded to its base,
The surly Tolbooth scarcely kept her place ;
The Tolbooth felt—for marble sometimes can, 470
On such occasions, feel as much as man—
The Tolbooth felt defrauded of his charms,
If JEFFREY died, except within her arms † :
Nay, last not least, on that portentuous morn
The sixteenth story where himself was born,

* The Tweed here behaved with proper decorum ; it would have been highly reprehensible in the English half of the River to have shewn the smallest symptom of apprehension.

† This display of sympathy on the part of the Tolbooth, (the principal prison in Edinburgh) which truly seems to have been most affected on this occasion, is much to be commended. It was to be apprehended, that the many unhappy criminals executed in the front, might have rendered the Edifice more callous. She is said to be of the softer sex, because her delicacy of feeling on this day was truly feminine, though, like most feminine impulses, perhaps a little selfish.

His patrimonial garret fell to ground,
And pale Edina shuddered at the sound :
Strewed were the streets around with milk-white
reams,
Flowed all the Canongate with inky streams ;
This of his candour seemed the sable dew, 480
That of his valour shewed the bloodless hue,
And all with justice deemed the two combined
The mingled emblems of his mighty mind.
But Caledonia's Goddess hovered o'er
The field, and saved him from the wrath of MOORE ;
From either pistol snatched the vengeful lead,
And strait restored it to her favourite's head.
That head, with greater than magnetic power,
Caught it, as Danae caught the golden shower,
And though the thickening dross will scarce refine,
Augments its ore, and is itself a mine.
" My son," she cried, " ne'er thirst for gore again,
" Resign the pistol, and resume the pen ;

The said HALLAM is incensed, because he is falsely accused, seeing that he never dineth at Holland House.—If this be true, I am sorry—not for having said so, but on his account, as I understand his Lordship's feasts are preferable to his compositions.—If he did not review Lord HOLLAND's performance, I am glad, because it must have been painful to read, and irksome to praise it. If Mr. HALLAM will tell me who did review it, the real name shall find a place in the text, provided nevertheless the said name be of two orthodox musical syllables, and will come into the verse, till then, HALLAM must stand for want of a better.

has displayed more politics than policy: many of the worthy Burgesses of Edinburgh being so incensed at the infamous principles it evinces, as to have withdrawn their subscriptions.

It seems that Mr. BROUGHAM is not a Pict, as I supposed, but a Borderer, and his name is pronounced Broom, from Trent to Tay:—So be it.

* I ought to apologize to the worthy Deities for introducing a new Goddess with short petticoats to their notice: but, alas! what was to be done? I could not say Caledonian's Genius, it being well known there is no Genius to be found from Clackmannan to Caithness, yet without supernatural agency, how was JEFFREY to be saved? The national "Kelpies," &c. are too unpoetical, and the "Brownies" and "gude neighbours," (spirits of a good disposition) refused to extricate him. A Goddess therefore has been called for the purpose, and great ought to be the gratitude of JEFFREY, seeing it is the only communication he ever held, or is likely to hold, with any thing heavenly.

Such are we now, ah! wherefore should we turn
 To what our fathers were, unless to mourn?
 Degenerate Britons! are ye dead to shame,
 Or, kind to dullness, do you fear to blame?

A pleasant thing for the wives and daughters of those who are blest or curst with such connections, to hear the billiard-tables rattling in one room, and the dice in another! That this is the case I myself can testify, as a late unworthy member of an Institution which materially affects the morals of the higher orders, while the lower may not even move to the sound of a tabor and fiddle without a chance of indictment for riotous behaviour.

Fabula narratur.

† I knew the late Lord FALKLAND well. On Sunday night I beheld him presiding at his own table, in all the honest pride of hospitality; on Wednesday morning, at three o'clock, I saw stretched before me all that remained of courage, feeling, and a host of passions. He was a gallant and successful officer; his faults were the faults of a sailor, as such Britons will forgive them. He died like a brave man in a better cause; for had he fallen in like manner on the deck of the frigate to which he was just appointed, his last moments would have been held up by his countrymen as an example to succeeding heroes.

Truth ! rouse some genuine Bard, and guide
his hand

To drive this pestilence from out the land, . . . 970
Even I—least thinking of a thoughtless throng,
Just skilled to know the right and chuse the wrong,
Freed at that age when Reason's shield is lost
To fight my course through Passion's countless host,
Whom every path of pleasure's flowery way
Has lured in turn, and all have led astray—
E'en I must raise my voice, e'en I must feel
Such scenes, such men destroy the public weal :
Altho' some kind, censorious friend will say,
"What art thou better, meddling fool,† than they?"
And every Brother Rake will smile to see
That miracle, a Moralist in me.
No matter—when some Bard in virtue strong,
Gifford perchance, shall raise the chastening song,
Then sleep my pen for ever ! and my voice
Be only heard to hail him and rejoice ;

+ "Yea and a pretty dance they have led me"

† "Fool then and but little wiser now."

Lord B. Ms.

Rejoice, and yield my feeble praise, though I
May feel the lash that virtue must apply.

As for the smaller fry, who swarm in shoals
From silly HAFIZ* up to simple BOWLES. 690
Why should we call them from their dark abode,
In broad St. Giles's, or in Tottenham Road?
Or (since some men of fashion nobly dare
To scrawl in verse) from Bond-street or the Square?

If things of ton their harmless lays indite,
Most wisely doomed to shun the public sight,
What harm? in spite of every critic elf,
Sir T. may read his stanzas to himself;

* What would be the sentiments of the Persian ANACREON,
HAFIZ, could he rise from his splendid sepulchre at Sheeraz,
where he reposes with FERDOUSI and SADI, the Oriental HOMER and CATULLUS, and behold his name assumed by one SCOTT of DROMORE, the most impudent and execrable of literary poachers for the Daily Prints.

MILES ANDREWS still his strength in couplets try,
 And live in prologues, though his dramas die. 700
 Lords too are Bards, such things at times befall,
 And 'tis some praise in Peers to write at all.
 Yet, did or taste or reason sway the times,
 Ah! who would take their titles with their rhymes?
 ROSCOMMON! SHEFFIELD! with your spirits fled,
 No future laurels deck a noble head;
 * No Muse will cheer with renovating smile,
 The paralytic puling of CARLISLE:
 The puny Schoolboy and his early lay
 Men pardon, if his follies pass away; 710
 But who forgives the Senior's ceaseless verse,
 Whose hairs grow hoary as his rhymes grow worse?
 What heterogeneous honours deck the Peer!
 Lord, rhymester, petit-maitre, pamphleteer*!

* The Earl of CARLISLE has lately published an eighteen-penny pamphlet on the state of the Stage, and offers his plan for building a new theatre: it is to be hoped his Lordship will be permitted to bring forward any thing for the Stage, except his own tragedies.

*On one alone Apollo deigns to smile
 And crowns a new Roscommon in Carlisle.*

See Child's Harold Canto 3.

So dull in youth, so drivelling in his age,
 His scenes alone had damned our sinking stage ;
 But Managers for one cried, " hold, enough !"
 Nor drugged their audience with the tragic stuff.
 Yet at their judgment let his Lordship laugh,
 And case his volumes in congenial calf; 720
 Yes ! doff that covering where Morocco shines,
 And hang a calf-skin* on those recreant lines. +

With you, ye Druids ! rich in native lead,
 Who daily scribble for your daily bread ;
 With you I war not : GIFFORD's heavy hand
 Has crushed, without remorse, your numerous

 Let Monodies on Fox regale your crew,
 And Melville's Mantle* prove a Blanket too! 730
 One common Lethe waits each hapless Bard,
 And, peace be with you! 'tis your best reward.
 Such damning fame as Dunciads only give,
 Could bid your lines beyond a morning live;
 But now at once your fleeting labours close,
 With names of greater note in blest repose.

When some brisk youth, the tenant of a stall, *
 Employs a pen less pointed than his awl,
 Leaves his snug shop, forsakes his store of shoes,
 St. Crispin quits, and cobbles for the Muse,
 Heavens! how the vulgar stare! how crouds applaud!
 How ladies read! and Literati laud! 750
 If chance some wicked wag should pass his jest,
 'Tis sheer ill-nature; don't the world know best?
 Genius must guide when wits admire the rhyme,

Hear, then, ye happy sons of needles trade !
Swains ! quit the plough, resign the useless spade !
Lo ! BURNS and BLOOMFIELD,* nay, a greater far,
GIFFORD was born beneath an adverse star,
Forsook the labours of a servile state,
Stemmed the rude storm, and triumphed over Fate :
Then why no more ? if Phœbus smiled on you,
BLOOMFIELD ! why not on brother NATHAN too ?
Him too the Mania, not the Muse, has seized ;
Not inspiration, but a mind diseased :
And now no Boor can seek his last abode,
No common be enclosed without an ode.
Oh ! since increased refinement deigns to smile
On Britain's sons and bless our genial Isle,
Let Poesy go forth, pervade the whole,
Alike the rustic, and mechanic soul :

* See NATHANIEL BLOOMFIELD's ode, elegy, or whatever he or any one else chooses to call it, on the enclosure of "Honington Green."

Ye tuneful cobblers ! still your notes prolong,
 Compose at once a slipper and a song ;
 So shall the fair your handy-work peruse,
 Your sonnets sure shall please—perhaps your shoes.
 May Moorland* weavers boast Pindaric skill,
 And tailors' lays be longer than their bill !
 While punctual beaux reward the grateful notes,
 And pay for poems—when they pay for coats.

To the famed throng now paid the tribute due, ✕
 Neglected Genius ! let me turn to you. 780
 Come forth, oh CAMPBELL† ! give thy talents scope,
 Who dares aspire, if thou must cease to hope ?

And thou, melodious ROGERS ! rise at last;
Recall the pleasing memory of the past ;
Arise ! let blest remembrance still inspire,
And strike to wonted tones thy hallowed lyre ;
Restore Apollo to his vacant throne,
Assert thy country's honour and thine own.
What ! must deserted Poesy still weep
Where her last hopes with pious COWPER sleep ? 790
Unless, perchance, from his cold bier she turns,
To deck the turf that wraps her minstrel, BURNS !
No ! tho' contempt hath marked the spurious brood,
The race who rhyme from folly, or for food ;
Yet still some genuine sons 'tis her's to boast,
Who least affecting, still affect the most ;
Feel as they write, and write but as they feel—
Bear witness GIFFORD, SOTHEY, MACNEIL.*

* GIFFORD, author of the Baviad and Mæviad, the first satires of the day, and translator of JUVENAL.

"Why slumbers GIFFORD?" once was asked in

Why slumbers GIFFORD? let us ask again. 800
Are there no follies for his pen to purge!
Are there no fools whose backs demand the scourge?
Are there no sins for Satire's Bard to greet?
Stalks not gigantic Vice in every street?
Shall Peers or Princes tread pollution's path,
And scape alike the Law's and Muse's wrath?
Nor blaze with guilty glare through future time,
Eternal beacons of consummate crime?

SOTHEY, translator of WIELAND's Oberon, and VIRGIL's Georgics, and author of SAUL, an epic poem.

MACNEIL, whose poems are deservedly popular: particularly "SCOTLAND'S Scaith, or the Waes of War," of which ten thousand copies were sold in one month.

* Mr. GIFFORD promised publicly that the Baviad and Mæviad should not be his last original works: let him remember, "Mox in reluctantes Dracones."

Arouse thee, GIFFORD ! be thy promise claimed,
Make bad men better, or at least ashamed. 810

Unhappy WHITE*! while life was in its spring,
And thy young Muse just waved her joyous wing,
The spoiler came ; and all thy promise fair
Has sought the grave, to sleep for ever there.
Oh ! what a noble heart was here undone,
When Science 'self destroyed her favourite son !
Yes, she too much indulged thy fond pursuit,
She sowed the seeds, but death has reaped the fruit.
'Twas thine own Genius gave the final blow,
And helped to plant the wound that laid thee low :

* HENRY KIRKE WHITE died at Cambridge, in October 1806, in consequence of too much exertion in the pursuit of studies that would have matured a mind which disease and poverty could not impair, and which Death itself destroyed rather than subdued. His poems abound in such beauties as must impress the reader with the liveliest regret that so short a period was allotted to talents, which would have dignified even the sacred functions he was destined to assume.

So the struck Eagle stretched upon the plain,
 No more through rolling clouds to soar again,
 Viewed his own feather on the fatal dart,
 And winged the shaft that quivered in his heart :
 Keen were his pangs, but keener far to feel
 He nursed the pinion which impelled the steel,
 While the same plumage that had warmed his nest,
 Drank the last life-drop of his bleeding breast.

There be who say, in these enlightened days,
 That splendid lies are all the poet's praise ;
 That strained invention, ever on the wing,
 Alone impels the modern Bard to sing :
 'Tis true, that all who rhyme, nay, all who write,
 Shrink from that fatal word to Genius—Trite ;
 Yet Truth sometimes will lend her noblest fires,
 And decorate the verse herself inspires :

Her place of birth, her own Achaian shore,
But doubly blest is he, whose heart expands

Who rends the veil of ages long gone by,
And views their remnants with a poet's eye!
WRIGHT*! 'twas thy happy lot at once to view

And you, associate Bards†! who snatched to light,
Those Gems too long withheld from modern sight ;

* Mr. WRIGHT, late Consul General for the Seven Islands, is author of a very beautiful poem just published : it is entitled " Horæ Ionicæ," and is descriptive of the Isles and the adjacent coast of Greece.

† The translators of the Anthology have since published separate poems, which evince genius that only requires opportunity to attain eminence.

Whose mingling taste combined to cull the wreath
Where Attic flowers Aonian odours breathe,
And all their renovated fragrance flung,
To grace the beauties of your native tongue;
Now let those minds that nobly could transfuse
The glorious Spirit of the Grecian Muse,
Though soft the echo, scorn a borrowed tone:
Resign Achaia's lyre, and strike your own. 870

Let these, or such as these, with just applause,
Restore the Muse's violated laws;
But not in flimsy DARWIN's pompous chime,
That mighty master of unmeaning rhyme;
Whose gilded cymbals more adorned than clear,
The eye delighted, but fatigued the ear,

But now worn down, appear in native brass;

Enough for Genius if itself inspire !
Let SOUTHEY sing, altho' his teeming muse,
Prolific every spring, be too profuse ;
Let simple WORDSWORTH chime his childish verse,
And brother COLERIDGE lull the babe at nurse ;
Let Spectre-mongering LEWIS aim, at most,
To rouse the Galleries, or to raise a ghost ; 900
Let MOORE be lewd ; let STRANGFORD steal from

And swear that CAMOENS sang such notes of yore ;
Let HAYLEY hobble on ; MONTGOMERY rave ;
And godly GRAHAME chaunt a stupid stave ;

The guardianship was nominal, at least as far as I have been able to discover; the relationship I cannot help, and am very sorry for it; but as his Lordship seemed to forget it on a very essential occasion to me, I shall not burthen my memory with the recollection. I do not think that personal differences sanction the unjust condemnation of a brother scribbler; but I see no reason why they should act as a preventive, when the author, noble or ignoble, has for a series of years, beguiled a "discerning public" (as the advertisements have it) with divers reams of most orthodox, imperial nonsense. Besides I do not step aside to vituperate the Earl; no—his works come fairly in review with those of other Patrician Literati. If, before I escaped from my teens, I said any thing in favour of his Lordship's paper books, it was in the way of dutiful dedication, and more from the advice of others than my own judgment, and I seize the first opportunity of pronouncing my

 The time hath been, when no harsh sound would fall,
 From lips that now may seem imbued with gall,
 Nor fools nor follies tempt me to despise
 The meanest thing that crawled beneath my eyes;

But now so callous grown, so changed since youth,
 I've learned to think, and sternly speak the truth ;
 Learned to deride the critic's starch decree,
 And break him on the wheel he meant for me ; 1040
 To spurn the rod a scribbler bids me kiss,
 Nor care if courts and crouds applaud or hiss :
 Nay more, though all my rival rhymesters frown,
 I too can hunt a Poetaster down :
 And, armed in proof, the gauntlet cast at once
 To Scotch marauder, and to Southern dunce.
 Thus much I've dared to do ; how far my lay
 Hath wronged these righteous times, let others say :
 This, let the world, which knows not how to spare,
 Yet rarely blames unjustly, now declare. 1050

" The greater part of this Satire I most sincerely wish had never been written - not only on account of the injustice of much of the critical and some of the personal part of it but the tone and the temper are such as I cannot approve."

POSTSCRIPT.

I HAVE been informed, since the present edition went to the Press, that my trusty and well-beloved cousins, the Edinburgh Reviewers, are preparing a most vehement critique on my poor, gentle, unresisting Muse, whom they have already so bedeviled with their ungodly ribaldry :

“ Tantæne animis cælestibus Iræ !”

I suppose I must say of JEFFREY as Sir ANTHONY AGUE-CHEEK saith, “ an I had known he was so cunning of fence, “ I had seen him damned ere I had fought him.” What a pity it is that I shall be beyond the Bosphorus, before the next number has passed the Tweed. But I yet hope to light my pipe with it in Persia.

My Northern friends have accused me, with justice, of personality towards their great literary Anthropophagus, JEFFREY ; but what else was to be done with him and his dirty pack, who feed by “ lying and slandering,” and slake their thirst by “ evil speaking ?” I have adduced facts already well known, and of JEFFREY's mind I have stated my free opinion, nor has he thence sustained any injury;—what scavenger was ever soiled by being pelted with mud? It may be said that I quit England because I have censured there “persons of honour and wit about town,” but I am coming back again, and their vengeance will keep hot till my return. Those who know me can testify that my motives for leaving England are very different from fears, literary or personal; those who do not, may one day be convinced. Since the publication of this thing, my name has not been concealed; I have been mostly in London, ready to answer for my transgressions, and in daily expectation of sundry cartels; but, alas! “the age of chivalry is over,” or, in the vulgar tongue, there is no spirit now-a-days.

There is a youth ycleped HEWSON CLARKE (Subaudi, Esquire,) a Sizer of Emanuel College, and I believe a Denizen of Berwick upon Tweed, whom I have introduced in these pages to much better company than he has been accustomed to meet: he is, notwithstanding, a very sad dog, and for no reason that I can discover, except a personal quarrel with a bear, kept by me at Cambridge to sit for a fellowship, and whom the jealousy of his Trinity cotemporaries prevented from success, has been abusing me, and what is worse, the defenceless innocent above-mentioned, in the Satirist, for one year and some months. I am utterly unconscious of having given him any provocation; indeed, I am guiltless of having heard his name till coupled with the Satirist. He has therefore no reason to complain, and I dare say that, like Sir FRETFUL PLAGIARY, he is rather pleased than otherwise. I have now metioned all who have done me the honour to notice me and mine, that is, my Bear and my Book, except the Editor of the Satirist, who, it seems, is a gentleman, God wot ! I wish he could impart a little of his gentility to his subordinate scribblers. I hear that Mr. JERNINGHAM is about to take up the cudgels for his Mæcenas, Lord CARLISLE ; I hope not : he was one of the few, who, in the very short intercourse I had with him, treated me with kindness when a boy, and whatever he may say or do “pour on, I will endure.” I have nothing further to add, save a general note of thanksgiving to readers, purchasers, and publisher, and in the words of SCOTT, I wish “ To all and each a fair good night,

“ And rosy dreams and slumbers light.”

A Satire, by LORD BYRON. Third Edition, Price 5s. boards.

“ It unites much of the judgment of the Essay on Criticism, the playful yet poignant smile and frown of indignation and ridicule of the Dunciad, with the Versification of the Epistle to Arbuthnot, and the acuteness of the imitations of Horace.—In a word, many years have passed since the English press has given us a performance so replete with mingled genius, good sense, and spirited animadversion”, &c. &c.

“ Since the time of the Baviad, we have not met with a production combining so much severity with so much genuine wit, humour, and real talent,” &c. &c.
